MELODIES OF MARK TWAIN

Mark Twain was passionate about music. We follow his life and musical interests from his early days in the South to his final days in Connecticut. He was drawn to spirituals that he heard as a boy, loved Scottish and Irish songs, enjoyed popular music of his day and later came to appreciate some of the classical composers of the Romantic era. A special feature of our concert is our performance on historical instruments. Judy will be playing a Martin parlor guitar that is the same make and model that Mark Twain owned and played, a Panormo guitar reproduction as well as a Paramount banjo. Barbara will be playing period flutes, including her wooden Asa Hopkins flute made in Litchfield, CT in the 1830s.
